

NEW DOL FEE DISCLOSURE RULES FOR 401(K)S

New regulations mean plan sponsors will have to be more accountable.

Presented by Benedict A. Mitchell Jr.

401(k) plan sponsors will need to become 401(k) plan analysts. The Department of Labor is implementing new regulations for 401(k)s this year to address some longstanding issues. The intention is to make indirect plan costs visible and leave plan participants better informed.

Beginning April 1, the DOL is requiring 401(k) plan sponsors to disclose fees and expenses related to the operation of the 401(k) to all plan participants. Specifically, the expense ratios of the funds within the plan must be disclosed, along with the amount per $1,000 that it would cost participants to be invested in a particular fund.¹

A 2011 AARP survey found that 62% of 401(k) participants didn't know how much they were paying in fees, demonstrating that this move may be long overdue.¹

As a plan sponsor, the new regulations will impact you in three ways:

- You now have to assume greater degrees of vigilance and diligence.
- You will have a new obligation to gauge the acceptability of the plan vendor's fees and costs.
- It will be wise to take a "total systems" view of your 401(k) and test it periodically to check that the "end users" are being well-served by the plan vendor's offering.²

As a plan fiduciary, you will have three ongoing duties. These duties are required by the new DOL 408(b)(2) regulation. Periodically, you must:

- Check to see that the plan vendor has sent you suitable fee and expense disclosures. (This should be routine.)
- Review these disclosures to make sure they conform to federal law. (Are you receiving sufficient information on fees and plan costs?)
- Audit the plan with the input of an independent consultant to see if the fees are fair. (Is the existing service arrangement reasonable or are plan participants getting gouged?)

In previous years, plan sponsors routinely delegated these tasks. No more. If you fail to do this, it could constitute a breach of fiduciary responsibility.²

The new rules - 408(b)(2) and 404(a)(5) - come out of concern that plan vendors may obscure avenues of indirect compensation as they communicate with plan sponsors.²

How can you step up and meet these new responsibilities? Employers will now have to look at their 401(k)s from a holistic perspective. It could be illuminating; it could be dismaying, as some businesses may learn that a plan vendor with whom they have had a long relationship has been less than forthcoming about certain fees and other factors.

It is the right time to ask for help? An experienced, independent retirement plan consultant can help you with an annual audit of the 401(k) fees and expenses, and contribute insights to help you meet these challenges and obligations with knowledge and confidence.

Benedict A. Mitchell Jr. is a registered representative of and offers securities through Kovack Securities, Inc., member FINRA / SIPC. Advisory services offered through Kovack Advisors, Inc., a Registered Investment Advisor. 4101 Ravenswood Rd. Ste.310, Ft. Lauderdale, FL., 33312. Tel: (888) 236-9894 Ext 1. Florida Benefit Specialists is unaffiliated with Kovack Securities, Inc. and Kovack Advisors, Inc.

This material was prepared by MarketingLibrary.Net Inc., and does not necessarily represent the views of the presenting party, nor their affiliates. Marketing Library.Net Inc. is not affiliated with any broker or brokerage firm that may be providing this information to you. All information is believed to be from reliable sources; however we make no representation as to its completeness or accuracy. Please note - investing involves risk, and past performance is no guarantee of future results. The publisher is not engaged in rendering legal, accounting or other professional services. If assistance is needed, the reader is advised to engage the services of a competent professional. This information should not be construed as investment, tax or legal advice and may not be relied on for the purpose of avoiding any Federal tax penalty. This is not a solicitation or a recommendation to purchase or sell any investment or insurance product or service, and should not be relied upon as such. All indices are unmanaged and are not illustrative of any particular investment.

Citations.

- 1 - blogs.smartmoney.com/encore/2012/01/06/3-retirement-trends-for-2012/ [1/6/12]
- 2 - www.rolandcriss.com/news/RolandCriss-Fee_Disclosure_WP_Part_I.pdf [2/2/12]